Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 22-47 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Iwamoto et al. ("Effect of Combination Therapy of Troglitazone and Sulphonylureas in Patients with Type 2 Diabetes Who Were Poorly Controlled by Sulphonylurea Therapy Alone", Diabetic Med., 13(4) pgs 365-370 (1996)) or AN of PTO-1449 in view of Buckingham (WO 95/21608A1) AG of PTO-1449.

Iwamoto et al. teach the effect of a combination of therapy of troglitazone (an insulin sensitizer) and sulphonylureas (insulin secretagogues) in a patient with type 2 diabetes. Note particularly page 366, under Patients, shows the sulphonylureas (gliclazide and glibenclamide) were used alone to treat diabetic patients before the addition of the insulin sensitizer. Clearly, the cited reference teaches the combination of an insulin sensitizer and sulphonylureas, also known as insulin secretagogues, is old and well-known in the art.

The instant invention differs from the cited reference in that the cited reference does not teach the applicants' preferred insulin sensitizer, 5-[4-[(N-methyl-N-(2-pyridyl)amino)ethoxy]benzyl]thiazolidine-2,4-dione, hereby known as Compound I, is combined with the insulin secretagogues. However, the secondary reference, Buckingham (AG), teaches the preferred insulin sensitizer, hereby known as Compound I, is useful in the treatment of diabetic nephropathy, a disorder associated with diabetes mellitus. Clearly, one skilled in the art would have been motivated to substitute one insulin sensitizer with another insulin sensitizer and achieve the same antidiabetic results and additive effect in the absence of evidence to the contrary.

The instant invention differs from the cited references in the cited references do not teach the preferred dosages of Compound I as disclosed in claims 22, 37 and 39. However, to determine a dosage or a dosage range having optimum effectiveness against diabetes is well within the level of one having ordinary skill in the art, and the skilled artisan would have been motivated to determine optimum dosages to get the maximum effects in the absence of evidence to the contrary.

Claims 22-47 are not allowed.
